VOLUME III. BERKELEY, CAL., FRIDAY MARCH 20, 1896. NUMBER 120

THE REV. ANNA SHAW

Discourses Upon the New Man at Shattuck Hall

SHE DEMANDS TWO POCKETS IN HER DRESS.

An Intelligent Audience Listens to An Interesting Lecture by a Most Pleasing Woman.

A Good Lecture.

An hour before the time announced for the lecture to be given at Shattuck Hall by the Rev. Anna Shaw last evening, rain commenced to fall, and continued steadily until after the time set for the lecture to begin.

This caused quite a number to remain away. There were enough, however, present to comfortably fill the hall and they were treated to a fine lecture by the gifted lady, who was the speaker of the evening.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Haight, the President of the Berkeley Suffrage Club, who stated that Berkeley was governed by good officials and that the Good Government Club looked after the interest of the town, but that now the Woman's Suffrage Club intended to secure the right to vote, in order that they may assist in making Beautiful Berkeley far better than it is at present. She then introduced Miss Anna Shaw, who, without any preliminaries, plunged at once into her subject, "The New Man."

She said that she had far more respect for a manish woman than she had for a "sissy man," whose ambition was to wear a chrysanthemum larger than his brain and a swallow tail coat; she hat d a swallow tail coat. The new man, she said must be a person who is willing to become a gladiator, a man of toil, and one who must not occupy an inch of this earth unless he is of some good on it, and this applied also to the old and new women. The men, she stated, were afraid to allow women to vote, because she might wear bloomers or a coat and vest or trousers similar to that of a man. She wanted to know by what right man claimed exclusive use of these garments. They were not provided for him by nature.

There were men who object to women voting because they say the women are stepping into the places formerly occupied by men and driving them out, so that they could not make a living. She then proceeded to state why women were forced to enter avocations that were at one time occupied exclusively by men. It was because the men had driven the women out of all the occupations that they ever had.

"When I was a girl," said Miss Shaw, "girls were brought up to be good cooks and good housekeepers, always with the one prize ahead a husband. If she did get married then she was censured by those who had trained her to the idea that that was what she was on earth for. Finally the young men got an idea that they would not marry, as it was less trouble to live single, and they would have more money to spend upon themselves if not married.

The women then could not get a husband and she had to live, so, as she had been trained to be a good cook or a good laundress, she went to work in the kitchen of the restaurant, the boarding house or the hotel, and was getting along fairly well, although she was not paid very much. Finally her place in the restaurant, boarding house or hotel was taken by a man who said he was a "chef," who demanded and received much higher wages, and today some of these "chefs," or men cooks, receive more wages each year than the Professor of one of the leading Universities of the United States.

Being driven out of the kitchen the women went to the washtub, but even here they were not left long undisturbed, for men went into that, and instead of being dubbed washerwomen they called themselves laundrymen, and in every city and town to day you can see notices of the "Laundrymen's Association," but nothing about a woman's association. The woman has tried dressmaking, but outside of the stitching, they were driven out of that, and the men were the cutters, fitters and formulators of styles. Why, I went to my dressmaker one day, and in fear and trembling asked her if I might have a pocket in my dress, and she told me it would spoil the fit, and I was compelled to go without a pocket, and carry my keys, pocketbook, handkerchief and memorandum brok in my hands, and having but one pair of hands I had to allow my skirts to trail in the dirt.

The next time I went to a man dressmaker and I asked him whether I could have a pocket. Certainly, madam, two if you want them, and I ordered two pockets and got them. (The lady here, ran her hand in her two pockets to show that she did have them.) The same is true of all the vocations that formerly belonged exclusively to women they have all been invaded by men.

She said that the men of the country were becoming inferior to women physically. That in all the Eastern colleges the girls were taller than the men. The California, however, the men were large and manly, more so than in any other State in the Union. When men wanted to stunt pigs, colts or other animals they gave them whisky and tobacco, which retarded their growth, and if it retarded the growth of animals why not men? She believed that the small race of men of the present day was caused by the use of tobacco and whisky when they were young.

The girls did not use these narcotics, and were now taking physical culture and were becoming noble specimens of American women. The old story used to be that girls went to college and became ill of over study and went home and died. She did not believe that overstudy ever killed any girl. It was the want of physical culture and exercise. She believed that tatten killed more girls than ever the doctors have.

The lecturer then gave a description of her work in the slums of New York, and asked the New Man to accord the same right to his mother, sister, wife or daughter that he did to the most ignorant foreigner that comes to our shores.

LOVE TRIUMPHANT

A Lorin Girl Weds the Man of Her Choice.

Were Married Secretly.

Henry E. Plummer is a most estimable young gentleman who lives in Alameda, and he has long been in love with Miss Adelaide Sydnor, a most charming young lady, who resides at Lorin, and his love was reciprocated by the young lady. The relatives of the young lady did not look with favor upon the young man, and refused to give their consent for their sister to wed him.

The young man urged an elopement, but the girl had great love for her relatives, and for a long time refused to listen to the wishes of her lover, considering that it was her duty to obey her relatives.

Finally the young man informed the object of his affections that he was going away, and once more urged her to become his wife. This time he was successful, as the idea of parting with him was something Miss Sydnor could not stand, so one day last week she met her lover in Oakland, and they were secretly married.

Yesterday the young couple informed the young lady's relatives of their marriage, and they sensibly accepted the inevitable, and gave them their blessing. Mr. Plummer is the Secretary of a mining company in Mariposa county, and has business to transact for the company in Japan. On the 30th inst. he in company with his bride will sail in the steamer which sails for the land of the Mikado, and will enjoy their honeymoon upon the bosom of the Pacific Ocean.

Intercollegiate Games.

Captain Merwin of the University of California track team refused to give his consent to the intercollegiate game being held on the Stanford oval, after visiting Stanford and ascertaining the condition of the athletic field. He says that it is wholly unfit for good work, and Captain Brown of Stanford has been compelled to forego having the great event on his own track. The games will now come off at the Olympic Club grounds in San Francisco, and will include the regular order of events of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association, with the exception of the bicycle races.

William Mullin, a member of the Democratic County Central Committee, will be a candidate for Supervisor in the Fifth district, now represented by Supervisor Pelouse.

Pretty Adelia Everett Prefers the Reform School to Wedding any of Her Suitors.

Murder in the First Degree.

After seven hours' deliberation the jury in the case of Ben L. Hill, charged with the murder of his wife brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. At 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon the case went to the jury and hour by hour the Court sat in readiness to receive their verdict. At 9:45 o'clock the jury came in for instructions regarding a conviction of manslaughter, but retired again at once and did not reappear until 10:48 o'clock.

Then the jury filed in and the foreman, G. B. Daniels, arose and read the verdict to the Court, it being "Guilty of murder in the first degree, as charged." No recommendation for mercy was made. Hill seemed stunned by the announcement. The verdict was a great surprise to all those in the courtroom. Hill remarked, as the deputy sheriff snapped the handcuffs on him, "Well, I got the worst there was to get, didn't I?"

Concludes Not to Marry.

The closing scenes in the contest over pretty Adelia Everett, the wayward girl who recently offered to wed the first of her admirers who could produce $75, were enacted yesterday in Judge Green's chambers.

Upon the testimony of the girl's relatives, the court concluded to commit the girl to the State school at Whittier until she becomes of legal age.

The young woman was very docile when in court today, and stated that she was willing to enter the institution at once. She then retracted her accusations against the Humane Society and denounced Edward Williams, declaring that she would not marry him under any circumstance.

She furthermore revealed the fact that the letter she had addressed to the press had been mostly written by her attorney and another person, she finally affixing her signature at their request. The girl will have two years and five months to serve in Whittier.

HE WAS NOT GUILTY

So Say a Jury in the Everson Misdemeanor Case.

Ben. Everson Acquitted.

Several days ago Ben Everson filled up on bug juice, and then started out to do somebody up. It finally occured to him that he had a grudge against Frank Gimbel, and he proceeded to his place of business and commenced to abuse him. Mr. Gimbel stood it as long as he could and then called an officer and had Everson arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace. This morning was set for the trial of the case, and Justice Lord's Court room the place of trial.

At the time appointed a number of jurymen who had been summoned by Officer Rawson were on hand and were soon sworn in to try the case, which they did, and acquitted the defendant on the first ballot.

Several of the students of the University are contemplating making a trip on foot to Mount Diablo, starting on Friday morning and returning on Monday.

OUR PRETTY CO-EDS

Will Play Basket Ball in San Francisco.

AND WILL MAKE STANFORD LOOK TO THEIR LAURELS.

The Game to be Played at Armory Hall, April 4th. None but Ladies Admitted.

Basket Ball Game.

Manager Brownsill of Berkeley and Manager Keller of Stanford have come to an agreement, and decided upon a date for the "co-ed" basket ball game. The game will be played in San Francisco, at Armory Hall, on April 4th, and only an audience of women and girls will be admitted. The length of the halves will be twenty minutes, with a ten-minute intermission. No officials to referee and umpire the geme have yet been chosen, but this matter will be attended to in a few days. All objection on the part of the faculty of the University of California has now disappeared, and the "co-eds" are training hard to defeat their rivals from Palo Alto. Professor Soule, chairman of the faculty committee on student affairs, says that the professors will not interfere, as the game will be played indoors.

To "Solon Shingle."

EDITOR GAZETTE:—If you will allow me a little space in your valuable paper. I should like to furnish one who styles herself "Solon Shingle," and who has needlessly undertaken to champion the cause of our grammar school teachers, a true text on which she may work at her leisure. She did remarkably well in last night's edition of the Advocate, under a false color. Now let us see what she can do under the true test. There are many young ladies in Berkeley, who have qualified themselves to take positions as teachers in the puclic school, who, for the scarcity of positions, cannot obtain work at the calling for which they have prepared themselves.

Conseqently they have to seek work in other fields which are not half so remunerative, to say nothing of the months vacation enjoyed by those who are fortunate enough to get into the school department. We congratulate ourselves on the fact that we have good teachers, but incline to the idea that some of the unfortunate ones may be just as competent.

Going, Going, Gone, title of article referred to. That is what a good many mothers and daughters were saying a year or so ago, but alas for their happy expectations, it turns out to be staying, staying, never gone. They thought that this kind of a shingle (which turns out to be a bird with feathers and has wings, I am told, may be seen on Eighth street, near Allston way any school day) had retired to their own homes and left the field for those who had by dint of hard work risen to fill places thus made vacant in the school department.

[illegible] shingle think that one of those professors mentioned in her article, should suddenly shuffle off, that she is more than prepared to take his place.

For in her disparaging remarks of other education, she assumes that she is able to supply capacity to those who are so unfortunate as to need her services, and assumming that the School Board knew of the wonderful ability of this new and modern wonder, I congratulate the School Board and the citizens of Berkeley upon this very valuable addition to their staff of school teachers.

Though some of us are a little skeptical. But that is nothing new. The race of mankind from the time of Noah down till the present time have always exhibited this tendency when anything new appeared.

The comparison to be seen between grammar grade teachers and the professors referred to, is very much like comparing a messenger boy in a large mercantile establishment to the manager of the concern, who, if he dies, his place is as readily filled as the messenger boy's would be.

Bonus reminds me that some mothers in Berkeley would like to know what kind of a bonus is necessary to obtain a position in the school department. I am informed that this certain shingle, after elected to the department, did give a house warming and a good time to all her friends and neighbors—music and dancing, and a merry jovial time to all. I wish just as merry a time to the non-successful.

Talking of surgical operations reminds me that this poor little bird might have been trying to operate on the brain of one of her own family, but the result proves the effort unavailing. If there were any danger threatening the school department, which, happily for us, there is not, her efforts in that direction will avail about as much.

In conclusion, if the Advocate publisher, or any of his assistants can furnish the original copy of the notes, taken by the reporter of the Advocate, at the Progressive Club, held in West Berkeley on the 17th of March, 1889, they may dispose of them to good advantage by applying to the Secretary of the Progressive Club. But, unfortunately for the truthfulness of the Advocate, which said in last night's edition that the reporter's notes said so and so, that naughty, careless reporter lost his notes, and they are now in the hands of a member of the Club, and can be produced when necessary. Try and do better next time.

NORTH BERKELEY

The Progressive Club Discuss the School Bond Question.

N. B. Improvement Club.

The North Berkeley Improvement Club held a special meeting last evening for the purpo e of discussing the bond question. There were about twenty present, and when the question of the evening was called up it met with opposition on the part of Mr. Welch and Captain Pitman whose objections were principally on the ground that there was too much taxation already. Finally a vote was taken on the course adopted by the Board of Education in calling for an issue of $60,000 for school purposes.

The resolution was passed unanimously by those present. Captain Pitman had left the meeting previous to the taking of the vote.

Good Roads.

Berkeley has no home representative in the Board of Supervisors but two of its members are elected by its votes. The west part of the town votes for one member and the east part another.

It is not very often that we have occasion to call upon the representatives to give us any assistance. Just now an opportunity is presented to them not only to help the city where they reside and at the same time do something for this place.

We have been grading and macadamizing two of our main thoroughfares to the town line toward Oakland, and this summer probably have a third one. Reference is made to Shattuck and San Pablo avenues, and Sixth street, at the West end of town. What we want is similar work performed connecting with the work already done, so that there will be a continuous macadamized road from Berkeley to Oakland. This work can be performed by the county, should the Supervisors deem it proper to act upon the matter.

A petition has been in circulation for a week or so asking the Board to take favorable action.

H. M. Watterbury, one of Berkeley's best rustlers, is looking after signers and he gets them. We trust that the matter will be promply attended to when it comes up before the County Board.

Contractors who desire sand or gravel, or property owners who desire gravel, sand or garden dressing should address Henry Neidt & Co., Golden Gate. Telephone No. 739, six bells. All orders receive prompt attention. 24

ANOTHER MURDERER

Nicholas Clausen Pleads Guilty, Today.

MUCH TO THE SURPRISE OF THE COURT AND ATTORNEYS.

His Attorney Asks the Court Not to Accept the Plea, and It is Finally Withdrawn.

Special dispatches to the GAZETTE.

He Pleads Guilty.

San Francisco, March 20—Nicholas Clausen caused a sensation in Judge Wallace's court this morning by pleading guilty to a charge of murder. Clausen is the baker who killed his wife Elizabeth on February 25th, without apparent provocation. He appeared for arraignment this morning, and as he was not represented by counsel the Court appointed an attorney named Carroll to act for him. The information against the prisoner was read, and he was asked his plea.

"Guilty," was the reply.

The courtroom was thronged with attorneys and idle spectators, and the sight of a man voluntarily stepping into the shadow of the gallows was such an unusual one that a murmur of surprise went up from the throng.

Judge Wallace received the plea as if it were customary for men to confess their guilt in his presence, and he promptly ordered that it be entered, and that the case be postponed for one week, so that he could hear some evidence before passing sentence.

At this point Attorney John O'Byrne sprang to his feet and assumed the role of an amicus curiae. He objected to the entry of the plea, saying that it would prejudice the defendant's case should he subsequently decide to withdraw it.

Judge Wallace replied that as the man had pleaded guilty it was the duty of the Court to order the Clerk to enter the plea upon the record.

O'Byrne said he could cite fifty cases in which the plea had been proffered and refused.

Jukge Wallace said the law did not require a court to refuse a proffered plea. He knew of no reason why it should be refused in this case.

The Clerk was about to enter the plea, when O'Byrne, who had succeeded in whispering a few words to prisoner, announced in a dramatic manner that it was all a mistake. Clausen had had no intention of voluntarily expiating his crime upon the gallows. His plea was due to his ignorance of court methods, and he desired to withdraw it.

This Claussen was permitted to do, and the trial of the case was set for April 1st.

Sound Sense.

EDITOR GAZETTE—In visiting East Berkeley, one cannot but be impressed by the placid, Arcanian aspect of the pretty suburb. Embosomed in hills, the gnarled forests of the University shield it from rude zephyrs one side, while the villas of the better class nestling in portierres of rare and varied specimens of floriculture delight the eye of the artist wanderer.

The perfume of tropical plants permeates the air and creates a feeling of languor and apathy, and that is, I suspect, where the dangerous secret lies. The people of East Berkeley are decidedly apathetic.

They look with exultation and point with pride to their noble University, where stalwart stuxents with inexpressible head-gear are to be seen, votaries of Euripides or Hercules as the case may be. These have ample halls to study or exercise in. No microbe can exist in that spacious atheneum; but what are they doing with the rising generation? The little tots of young America? The darlings and hopes of the household?

Crowded into stifling little apologies of school houses pregnant with the germs of diptheria, scarlatina "et hoc genus omne," the little one inhale education and incipient disease simultaneously, while their parents, with apathetic complacency watch the daily miserable routine. Yet every stranger can see this and wonders at it. They ask, "Is their no remedy? Is East Berketey bankrupt?" "Not at all" the Berkeleyite will respond repudiating the idea of bankruptcy with scorn—and yet perhaps he, himself, is one of those contemptible non-advancent silurians, a non-bond holder, verbuni sap. But we say, and the thinking people of Alameda county say, that any man or any number of men who will not vote for bonds to raise suitable school houses for the little ones, is unworthy to ever hold office of any kind in the gift of the people in Alameda or any other county of California.

A VISITOR.

As fine lemons as are grown in the State, are now raised in North Berkeley. Oranges do not seem to do as well as its sister bearer. The first bananna tree that we have ever heard of producing fruit here, is now impartial bloom on Vine street, at the North End of town, and is worth going some distance to see, particularly by those who have never seen this importation from the tropics in full life.

The sky clouded up yesterday afternoon, and toward night there was a slight sprinkling of rain, with a tendency to a heavier fall within a day or two. It is promised that the customary equinoctial storm which is now about due will be here with itt accustomed regularity.

As a rule there has not been a great deal of sickness in town this season notwithstanding some very abrupt changes in the weather. Such sickness as has occurred amounted to but little, and was soon taken care of. Within the past week, however, there has been two cases of typhoid fever and two of scarlet fever, reported in South Berkeley.

The students drill every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons attract quite a large number of visitors. The boys are drilling hard in expectation of the sham battle, and for the competetive drill. Each captain is making every effort possible to have his company capture the flag.

There will be a meeting of the Graduate Club of the University at the Hotel Metropole, Oakland, on Thursday evening, April 9th. After supper the question, "Resolved, That the College Course Should be Limited to Three Years," will be discussed.

OUR TOWN'S FUTURE.

There is not a person in Berkeley but thinks and has every reason to believe that no town in the State has greater possibilities in the future than it has. The easiest arrived at reason in the world has made all of this opinion. Nature has endowed it with qualities for making it one of the very best places in whatever view you may take it. Its location near to the metropolis of the Pacific Coast, its water front advantages and the lay of the land all combine to make up this great advantage. We have the opportunities for close, cheap and quick connection with all parts of the world. A natural drainage, good water and an equable climate all belong to Berkeley and come to her as nature's endowment.

With all of these things in our favor there is something else necessary and that is enterprise. This means work and it must be constant and unremitting. We cannot sit still and be content with having the food fall into our mouth. Progression is the order of the day the world over and we find, by experience, that it is the pushing kind of people who get along the fastest and are the most sure of arriving at the desired goal in good season.

Berkeley proper has a large amount of territory within its lines for the number of inhabitants now occupying. It must have a great many more people here to give it the lively appearance that belongs to a rapidly growing town. The increase by natural production is too slow and immigration is necessary. To get others to come and live with us and help build up the community, we must hold out inducements in addition to those we have already enumerated. We want an additional number of good streets to those now built. We need a public park and we want our streets adorned with shade trees.

There are a great many other things which go to make up a first class city. For the present our endeavors should be strained to obtain that which our resources will quickly place in our possession. None of these, however, can be gained unless our shoulders are placed to the wheel, that there may be a quick onward movement. Some portions of our town should have better transit accommodations. So that home purchasers may have equal advantages to go and come from their places of business. Our houses, gardens and vacant lots in all parts of the town should be kept in first-class order. As cleanliness is next to godliness, we should practice what we are fond of preaching. To be sure, there are plenty of places for strangers who come among us for a day's outing where they can enjoy themselves with country life for the time being, and have the privilege of panoramic views excelled by none, and equalled by few.

There should be places more cultivated for public entertainment, so that visitors will be desirous of coming here. The present generation calls for more luxuries than those of the past, and we must keep equal to their wants, all of which costs money, and yet the guest never is unwilling to pay double or thribble the cost.

We have got into the habit of grumbling at every little public outlay, whatever advantages may be derived from it. We refuse to recognize that the nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling. It is a very bad habit for our own welfare to get into, and the sooner we reverse this order of things the sooner will the scales drop from our eyes, and the clearer will be our vision.

Let us be ever ready to lend an assisting hand to aid and foster all public improvements whatsoever they may be, and not put a damper on vigorous ardor for something in the line of progression. When a new building is being or is to be erected, don't let us say to our neighbors that it is of no account, that it should be larger and better, but encourage every improvement, be it large or small. It is the many small things that make up the larger ones. If each and every one will do some little thing to make the town appear to better advantage, even to our own sight, we shall soon have those among us who will join in and make the growing ball still larger. Put out trees in front of your lots, turn up your gardens and make the surroundings of your houses neat and attractive, and the name of Berkeley will soon be a magnet which will attract from all directions, and the place will grow faster than you could ever dream of.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

We now may consider that the campaign for having the constitution of California so changed that women may be allowed the use of the ballot, is fairly launched in Berkeley as well as in other portions of the State.

It is now exercised to a certain extent in a majority of the States of the Union, and the remainder are gradually falling into line. Enough of public sentiment has heretofore been obtained to show that a majority of the voters of the Golden State are in favor of the adoption of the desired clause in the fundamental rule.

A corps of experienced speakers are now on the stand, and will thoroughly go through the State calling the attention of our people to the deserved change.

Miss Anna Shaw lectured in Shattuck Hall last evening to a fair sized audience incidentally bringing to the ears of the audience the benefits which would accrue if women were allowed to vote. She will visit every county in order to explain and educate the people to the not coming idea, for it is already here, but to the fact that women should have an equal chance with man when ever all other things were on an equality. That women should be allowed to do a great deal of work now done by man and which is more properly in a woman's sphere.

We did not notice, in telling how women should have all of these privileges, that Miss Shaw warned the coming women that she must also assume all the disagreeable matters connected with the general duties of man without making herself disagreeable in so doing.

She did not instruct, but probably took it for granted that the new order would be elevating and many of those matters which have from time immemorial existed will be removed and while woman might come down a little man would raise a good deal.

In this equalization process everything should be taken into consideration of the bright and dark side of the question fully shown to those of an enquiring mind.

It is very evident that the women are in dead earnest in this matter and are in for a winning. As far as the feminine globe is concerned they pin their whole faith in the following:

They talk about a woman's sphere
As though it had a limit:
There's not a place in earth or heaven,
There's not a task to mankind given,
There's not a blessing or a woe,
There's not a whispered yes or no,
There's not a life, or death, or birth,
That has a feather's weight or worth,
Without a woman in it.

"WHEN ELI'S HAD HIS DINNER."

On long, hot Sunday afternoons,
When we've got home from meetin,
An Eli's changed his pantaloons,
He's awful set on eatin.
He's that outrageous crass 'twould shame
An unconverted sinner.
I have to stand a heap of blame
Till Eli's got his dinner.

An so I'm never very slow
To get the victle thinly;
I call it duty, for I know
His temper's a spitin;
I warm the taters an the meat
An don't let nothin hinder,
An then I let the feller eat,
An Eli gets his dinner.

Now, Eli's not a greedy man,
But somehow, come a Sunday,
He'll eat a bigger dinner than
He'd think of on a Monday.
An when he's done he tips his chair
Back against the kitchen winder,
An soon you'll hear a snorin there
When Eli's got his dinner.

But when he's dozed a little while,
Half wakin an half sleepin,
He'll wake up in a better style
For Sunday afus deakin.
He'll talk so pious an so kind,
"Twould touch a hardened sinner;
A better man you'd never find
Than Eli after dinner.

BIG TOM, CONVICT.

There were those who said that convict 1280 was innocent of the crime which sent him to prison for such a long term of years, but that there was scarce a hope of his ever being a free man again. They meant that he was technically guilty. He had sought to save a woman from a beating at the hands of her husband; and in the struggle and excitement he had struck a blow which caused the death of the man. It was accident, in a sense, but it was also manslaughter. No man who is a man will stand by and see a woman beaten, and yet if he interferes he must take his chances with the law. Big Tom, as the convict was sometimes referred to, was, like most big men, a child in his gentleness and good nature. He did not complain, but he grieved. He thought of the years and years which must drag away before the prison doors would open to him, and he moved about like a weak, old man. The prison officials felt pity for the man, but a convict is a convict, and all must be treated alike—all who show obedience to the rules. They sized him up as childlike and good natured, and yet they said to each other as they talked of him:

"Look out for Big Tom! He will break loose some day and do some desperate thing!"

They thought it would come during the first six months of his term—then during the second—then they almost became afraid of him. Men who are slow to anger—who go on grieving, brooding and bearing a mental burden for weeks and months are David when the climax comes.

Big Tom had the management of the trip hammer in the machine shop. Had they put him in the shoe shop or tailor shop he would have rebelled at once. His place was beside the biggest piece of machinery in the shops, two pieces of machinery, as it were—Tom and Trip. Day by day and week by week and month by month, as the ponderous hammer rose and fell and its blows shook the very earth for yards around, making the convict smile and look proud, the guards had an eye on him and kept saying to each other:

"It will come. It is only delayed. When he breaks loose, he will kill some one and have to be killed in turn."

Nearly half of the second year had passed, and the giant convict had never even sulked, when one day there came into the shop as sightseers a husband, wife and little girl 4 or 5 years old. Children are seldom seen in prisons, and it is a rare thing that they are taken into the shops in the yards. If any one in that prison knew that convict 1280 had a daughter—a fair haired, handsome child—who could only walk alone when the jury pronounced his verdict of "guilty"—he had forgotten the fact. His wife had visited him as often as visitors were allowed, but the child had never been seen within the grim walls. Knowing that her husband had killed a man by accident, the wife could bear to see him wearing the horrible stripes of a convict, but to let the child look upon him, to gaze in wonder at the iron bars, to ask why all those men were there, a thousand times no! And so this was the first child Big Tom had seen since the heavy doors shut him in. Father, mother and child came close to him and gazed at the ponderous hammer with wondering eyes. You would have argued that the sight of the child would have softened the convict's heart and brought tears to his eyes, but it did not. It brought a feeling of madness, of desperation, of frenzy. To save a woman from a brutal beating at the hands of a drunken, worthless thing not fit to be classed with men he had struck a blow.

A jury had called it murder in the second degree, and he was here in prison on a sentence almost never ending. He had been wronged, and the knowledge of it fired his heart and brought the long expected outbreak. With a sudden cry which startled every one in the noisy shop Big Tom made a spring forward, seized the child in his arms, and there was a shout of defiance on his lips as he held her at arm's length and glared about him. The mother of the child gasped for breath and staggered back to the wall and sank down. The father stood staring, as if struck dumb, but presently held out his hands in silent supplication. Big Tom glowered and muttered in reply. He was a convict, a childless father. He was dead to his child—she was dead to him. He could not make another father's heart ache and throb and grieve as his did, but he would secure revenge.

After muttering he was silent. No one cried out. Guards and convicts were seemingly stupefied. There was the hum of machinery, but not of voices. Convicts turned from forge and anvil and bench and lathe and held their breath. The two shop guards leaned forward in their chairs and looked and looked, but they did not move or cry out.

"What will he do with the child?"

The two men working at the trip hammer with Big Tom had fallen back. He had control of the machinery which worked it. The answer to the question could be read in his eyes. Men had wronged him under cover of the law. He had been deprived of liberty, degraded and disgraced. Death were more merciful than such a sentence as his, and in dying he would secure revenge. A piece of iron had been left under the hammer. There was heard the sound of crash! crash! crash! as the mass of iron rose and fell at regular intervals—that sounded above the monotonous hum of the machinery.

"He will thrust her under the hammer!"

So thought each guard and each convict—so thought the father, whose feet seemed chained to the floor and whose face was whiter than the dead. One of the guards could have touched a button and signaled the engineer to shut off steam, but he did not move a hand. Either guard had a fair mark to shoot at, but their pistols were not drawn. Up and down—up and down went the hammer, but suddenly the belt was thrown over on the loose pulley and the mass rested on the anvil. It seemed to those who looked as if they had been looking through a mist—such a mist as rises from earth of a summer morning. It seemed to them that this mist thinned out—cleared away before the influence of a rising sun, and by and by they saw the child nestling on Big Tom's hairy breast, one hand smoothing his cheek, and seeming to come from a long distance off they heard her childish voice saying:

"No, you wouldn't hurt Nellie—you wouldn't hurt Nellie! What makes you cry? Have you got a little girl too? Won't they let you go home to see your little girl?"

And the convicts advanced step by step, and the guards crept forward, and lo! Big Tom's tears were falling as he hugged the child more tightly and kissed her fair hair and rosy cheek. There was silence yet—silence as he walked to and fro and wept and sobbed and lifted the child till she could clasp her tiny arms about his neck and rest her cheek against his. Not a whisper among the convicts—not a move from father or mother or the guards. By and by Big Tom placed the child in its father's arms, wiped the tears from his eyes on the sleeve of his striped jacket, and with a "God bless the little darling!" and a "Thank ye, sir!" he returned to his work, and the hammer was lifted and held in waiting for the hot iron to be placed on the anvil beneath.

The guards motioned for the other convicts to go back to their benches and forges, and a minute later the visitors had gone and work was in full blast. The long expected outbreak had come and gone. For 30 seconds Big Tom had felt such a raging hate in his soul that he was transformed into a human devil. The child had smiled into his burning eyes—her soft touch and lulled him—her words had brought back his reason. Was he punished? No! A year later he was pardoned, and today another fair haired, blue eyed, smiling child puts her arms about his neck and says:

"You are such a great, big papa, but you wouldn't never hurt nobody, would you?"—Detroit Free Press.

A Gentlemanly Profession.

A city man was lately asked to recommend a nice, gentlemanly profession in which a quick fortune could be made without risk. He replied that he knew of only two such professions, and they were both rather hard to get into. They were the professions of Kaffir millionaire and American railroad reorganizer. The Kaffir millionaire is not entirely unknown to our readers, but perhaps they are not so well acquainted with the railroad reorganizer. His native habitat is New York, and he is only to be seen in London as a bird of passage. He may honor us with his company for a few days when on his way to the Riviera or the upper Nile, but he would be making himself too cheap if he were to recognize such a thing as business when he "had only run over for a short holiday." His work here is done vicariously through sympathetic agents or public spirited committees. He has also committees in New York, and nowadays he finds it necessary to have syndicates and underwriters as well.

A playful professional fiction assumes that these committees have been elected by the reorganized bond and stock holders to protect their interests. Another pleasant illusion gives the syndicates and the underwriters credit for stepping into the deadly breach to save the reorganization scheme from imminent peril. And they have to be paid accordingly, or, in professional phraseology, "compensated."—Saturday Review.

Greely and Greeley.

"Do you know," said Representative Aldrich of Chicago, "meeting General Greely recently reminds me of a day at the World's fair, when we all stood with open mouth wonderment and interest, looking upon that scene, so graphically illustrated, of Greely and his little band of surviving explorers struggling with death and worse. At the same time we were listening with sadness to the eloquent recital which was given to groups of visitors every few moments by the attendant, when suddenly, during a pause in the proceedings, an old granger—that was his appearance—broke out feelingly, 'I allus thought it was a shame that Greely wasn't elected president and said so to the Grant crowd to hum at the time.'"—Washington Post.

The Perspective.

She waved her hand imperiously.

"Be very careful," she commanded her maid, "of the perspective. You made me look dreadfully shallow last evening."

After that the making of her toilet proceeded without further interruption.—Detroit Tribune.

Material For Cavalry.

While the United States does not boast of a large standing army, the few regiments of cavalry which have seen service on the plains will not only compare favorably with the mounted men of other nations, but for the particular kind of work to which they have been trained they are without equals in the world. We have had no reason to keep them in training, but if put to the test we could certainly raise a magnificent army in a very short time. During the early days of the recent rebellion we would have plenty of horsemen to call upon.

Whereas, in earlier days, equestrianism was unknown, comparatively speaking, it has in later days become so general as a means of exercise, recreation and health that old and young are fairly good riders. The various sports of polo, hunting and racing have served to stimulate interest in equitation. The military troops formed throughout the country are also factors.

All of these sources would be drawn upon for officers rather than for private soldiers. They do not represent a large number in comparison with the force necessary to cope with a foe, but they would certainly prove a valuable nucleus on which to build.—Rider and Driver.

Wouldn't Need It.

The Syracuse Standard tells of an amusing correspondence that recently took place between a Wisconsin farmer and a local boiler firm. The farmer wrote as follows:

DEAR SIRS—I hav a 1,000 akors of trees that I want out. Im poro but Im willing to pay too hundred dolers fer an engin that will do my work.

The boiler firm saw that the engine necessary to accomplish the devastation of his virginal forest would cost $8,000, and they informed him to this effect.

A week passed and then the following pithy epistle came from the Wisconsin woods:

DEAR SIRS—What in h—l wud I want of an engin or biler if I hed $5,000?

South Dakota employs 2,423 hands in her factories, with $6,682,748 worth of product.

Artistic Picture Framing.

"The spirit of art lays hold on that of the past—unites it with the best in the presen, and strives ever for better in the future.

In This Sense we endeavor to do artistic picture framing. We do good work, nothing else ever leaves our stores. Special care is given to effect, our years of patient toil in this line are now producing good fruit, our shops are as busy during the usual "dull" season as we were during the "holiday rush." Your inspection of our work will give you the reason.

Artistic Work is not necessarily high price; we can frame a large picture for $1.50, 2.50, 5.40 to $40. On all our work we guarantee satisfaction.

Adopting specifications for macadamizing and guttering streets in the Town of Berkeley.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF Trustees of the Town of Berkeley, as follows: That the specifications for macadamizing and guttering streets in the Town of Berkeley shall be as follows.

Specifications for macadamizing rock.—Rock used in macadamizing and constructing gutters in the streets of the Town of Berkeley shall be classified into three classes, and shall be designated as Class A, Class B and Class C.

Class A.—Class A shall be such rock as shall lose by abrasion and fracture not more than 15 % of its original weight when subjected to the test known as the rattler test hereinafter described.

Class B.—Class B shall be such rock as shall lose by abrasion and fracture not more than 30 % of its original weight when subjected to the said rattler test.

Class C.—Class C shall be such rock as shall be approved by the Board of Trustees of the Town of Berkeley from time to time, a sample of which rock shall be presented for such approval. One sample of such rock having been approved, it shall be deemed sufficient for all subsequent work in said Class C, until such approval shall be withdrawn by said Board.

Section 2. Macadamizing.—The macadam shall be of three classes to be designated as Class A, Class B and Class C. All macadamizing shall be of the class called for in the Resolution of Intention and the Board of Trustees shall be the sole judges as to the class of macadam required in any street to be macadamized.

Section 3. The rattler test shall consist in placing one hundred and twenty-five (125) pounds of the macadamizing rock crushed to pass through a two and a half (2½) inch circular ring, in the machine known as the rattler, belonging to the city of Oakland, or some similar machine, and revolved at the rate of not less than twenty-eight (28) revolutions per minute for 5000 revolutions.

Section 4. Subgrade. The roadway shall be brought to a smooth and even surface, and to the form of cross section as given by the Town Engineer where not already so formed, and shall be thoroughly rolled with a roller weighing not less than three tons; whenever the earth upon the roadway is loose or dusty it shall be thoroughly sprinkled and allowed to partially dry, and then be thoroughly rolled until compact and firm.

Section 5. Macadamizing, Class A. All rock used for macadamizing designated as Class A shall be rock classed as belonging to Class A in Section 1. This ordinance shall be applied in two courses or layers. The first course shall be composed of rock crushed to pass through a two and one-half (2½) inch circular ring, and shall be spread evenly over the surface of the roadway. The thickness of the first course or layer shall be not less than eight (8) inches at the center line of the roadway before rolling, diminishing uniformly to six (6) inches at the gutter line. The second layer shall consist of finely crushed rock or screenings not greater than three-quarters (¾) of an inch in diameter, free from all dirt, and shall be of sufficient quantity to thoroughly fill all interstices and entirely cover the first layer; the whole shall then be thoroughly watered and rolled. Wherever such rolling causes hollows or depressions, they shall be filled with screenings and re-rolled until smooth and even.

Section 6. Macadamizing, Class B.—All rock used in macadamizing designated as Class B shall be rock classed as belonging to Class B in Section 1. This ordinance shall be applied in two courses or layers. The first layer shall be composed of rock crushed to pass through a two and one-half (2½) inch circular ring and shall be spread evenly over the surface of the roadway. The thickness of the first layer shall be not less than seven (7) inches at the center line of the roadway diminishing uniformly five (5) inches at the gutter line. The second layer shall consist of finely crushed rock or screenings not greater than three-quarters (¾) of an inch in diameter, free from dirt, and shall be of sufficient quantity to thoroughly fill all interstices, and cover the first layer; the whole shall then be thoroughly watered and rolled until compact and firm. Wherever such rolling causes hollows or depressions they shall be filled with screenings and re-rolled until smooth and even.

Section 8. Grouted Gutters. The gutters shall be of the width called for in the Resolution of Intention to do the work. They shall be paved with stone well bedded and firmly bedded in compact earth. The rock used shall be of either Class A or Class B, and shall be at least four inches in depth, and no more than four stones shall be laid to one square foot of area. The gutter shall then be thoroughly wet and rammed in place. The stones shall be laid to avoid filling interstices with gravel, earth or other material. After the stones have been rammed in place a mixture of one part Portland cement to one part sand shall be poured over the surface of the gutter, and the surface of the gutter shall be finished with a coat of cement mortar, one inch in thickness, composed of one part Portland cement to two parts sand, and quickly sprinkled; said process to be continued until no openings appear after sprinkling.

Section 9. Concrete gutters. The concrete gutters shall be of the width called for in the Resolution of Intention. The earth underneath the gutters shall first be thoroughly wet and tamped. The gutters shall be laid in sections of (6) inches in thickness, composed of one (1) part best Portland cement of approved brands (that shall stand a tensile strength of three hundred (300) pounds to the square inch seven (7) days after mixing) to two (2) parts clean, coarse, sharp sand, and four (4) parts clean broken stone (that will pass a 1½ inch ring) ranging in size from one-half (½) to two (2) inches in diameter, the whole to be thoroughly mixed dry, and afterwards sufficient water added by sprinkling to slightly moisten, and no more, and then thoroughly tamped until the water comes to the surface; wherever the water on the surface are not completely filled they shall be filled with cement mortar, one part cement to two parts sand, thoroughly mixed and slightly moistened and well tamped, and the surface left even and accurately formed to the cross section given by the Town Engineer.

"All right, I won't."
